Lt. Governor's Office on Aging Awards $350,000
Grant to Edgefield County Senior Citizens Council

Columbia – Lt. Governor André Bauer's Office on Aging announced today that the Edgefield County Senior Citizens Council will receive a $350,000 state grant that will support construction of a new Senior Center Complex in Edgefield. Senior centers in eight South Carolina communities will share in a $1.9 million package of state assistance that will be distributed to support construction and renovation efforts statewide.

"The services and programs that these centers provide make a positive impact and help create many opportunities to improve the quality of life of seniors and their families in those communities," said Bauer.

The Edgefield Senior Citizens Council currently provides services such health and wellness programming, meals, adult day care, respite care and transportation to older adults in Edgefield County. Numerous studies have shown the positive impact these kinds of activities have on the physical and mental well-being of senior adults. The Council's current facilities are stretched to the limit, as demand for these types of services continues to increase. The money provided by the Lt. Governor's Office on Aging grant, along with matching funds from other sources, will allow the Council to meet the growing demand for these types of services in Edgefield County in a new, state-of-the-art facility dedicated completely to providing senior services. South Carolina's senior population is expected to double during the next two decades.

The South Carolina Senior Center Permanent Improvement Program (PIP)

Established by the South Carolina Legislature in 1991, the PIP grant process uses revenue from the statewide tax on Bingo games to fund improvements to Senior and Community Centers statewide. The program is administered by the Lt. Governor's Office on Aging, and provides much needed support for the network of support services available to help older South Carolinians lead active and vital lives in their own homes and communities.

Grants awarded for the 2005 - 2007 PIP funding include the following projects:

Capitol Senior Center: ($52,900) for renovation/addition to the existing senior center in Columbia.

Edgefield County Senior Citizens Council: ($350,000) for construction of a new senior center in Edgefield.

Georgetown County Bureau of Aging Services: ($350,000) for the construction of a senior center in the Pawley's Island area.

Marlboro County Council on Aging: ($9,000) for electrical rewiring and improved parking at the existing senior center in Marlboro.

McCormick County Council on Aging: ($350,000) for the construction of a new multi-purpose senior center in McCormick.

Town of Mt. Pleasant: ($350,000) for a new senior center in the Town of Mt. Pleasant.

Newberry County Council on Aging: ($350,000) for the expansion of the existing senior center in Newberry.

St. James Island South Santee Community Center: ($100,000) for the renovation of the existing center in McClellanville.
